HOUSE COMMITTEE PASSES SOL-DIERS' HOME APPROPRIATION.

It was not surprising yesterday morning that a quorum failed to show in the House of Representatives, for several committees were out visiting State institutions and many members had been excused from attendance. Speaker Adams glanced anxously at the doors, expecting to see a sufficient number drop in to make up the quorum. Clerk Brown looked over in the direction where Higbee, of Sullivan, was accustomed to sit. Higbee is the gentleman who waits patiently till a debate is over and then announces the cost to the State in time wasted. The gentleman was not in his seat yesterday morning, and Clerk Brown wrote out a telegram to be forwarded to him at Sullivan. The dispatch read: "We lack just one member in having a quorum this morning. Your absence cost the State of Indiana just $972.40."

The Speaker also commented on the absence of members, stating that he would hereafter ask that the leave of absence be refused where there was danger of breaking a quorum. The roll call showed only fifty-nine members, seventy-five being needed, and the clerks tried to get the needed eight by messengers and by the use of the telephones. The committees visiting the institutions in part prevented the quorum, and this furnished occasion for a few remarks about junketing. Mr. Harris, of Hamilton, and others thought it was a needless expense to the State, very little being accomplished by these committees, which were generally handsomely entertained. Mr. Duncan referred to the trip to Bloomington. He wished he had not gone. The committee was unable to get much information about the university on account of the crowd and the ceremonies of the day. At 10:30 o'clock the Speaker announced that the House would not meet until Monday morning.

Very few of the important measures that are to come up this session have been introduced in the House and but little progress has been made with those that have been presented. The legislative apportionment is before both houses and will be used as a groundwork in mapping out the bill that will finally be passed. The congressional apportionment bill from Mr. Stutesman's committee will be presented the coming week and it will have several other measures to compete with it for honors of passage. Several of the new congressmen have been on the floor of the House during the last week and members find themselves in somewhat of a dilemma. It is a case of making ten pieces of pie go the rounds of a dozen people. The fee and salary bill from the House will come up for introduction this week.

Mr. Van Arsdel's committee has been writing to prominent business men in all parts of the State asking their opinions as to salaries paid officers in their counties. The committee has been surprised at the answers received. In nearly all the cases the estimates of business men have been much lower than those of the officers, who believe they are not sufficiently paid. Salaries will be raised in some of the gas belt counties where business has increased wonderfully in recent years. The recorders in these counties, where realty deals have been frequent, are poorly paid under the present law. The committee feels gratified at the conduct of the Marion officers, who have attempted to bring no pressure to bear on the committee, although they have presented statements showing the business. presented statements showing the business of their offices. The growth of Indianapolis in the last few years has brought a great deal of new business.

SOLDIERS' HOME BILL. The ways and means committee held s meeting, yesterday afternoon, and decided to recommend the passage of the Lafayette Soldiers' Home bill, with an amendment cutting the appropriation from $100,000 to $75,000. The committee on military affairs first considered the measure and after cutting the appropriation from $150,000 to $100,-000 reported favorably. The bill was afterwards committed to the ways and means committee which took off a $25,000 slice. The Senate committee has recommended an The Senate committee has recommended an appropriation of $100,000. The Newhouse bill, exempting mortgage indebtedness to the extent of $1,000, where the mortgage is held in the State, will also be reported upon favorably. A like action has been determined upon for the amended greenbacks bill of Mr. Remy. This amended bill puts bicycles and other articles among taxables. The effect of the measure, if passed, will add, it is calculated, $2,000,000 to the list of taxables.

There will be an investigation of the affairs of the School Board of this city, if the advice of the committee on affairs of the city of Indianapolis is acted upon. the examination.

The Governor, yesterday, made the announcement, as intimated in the Journal yesterday, that he would not consent to act with a board, a majority of which consisted of Republicans, in making appointments. He thought it would be unfair to have him assume a part of the responsibility without having the privilege of making any of the appointments. Yesterday was the seventeenth day of the General Assembly of 1895. The few bills that have been passed are of minor importance.

LARGE EXPENSE FUNDS.

Building and Loan Evils Which Legislators Are Considering. There is no subject more talked about among legislators than that of building and loan association legislation, and before the present session is over there will be lively debates and fights, both in committees and on the floor, irrespective of party over the question of throwing more rigid laws around these associations. There are a number who say that within several years the State will be greatly scandalized unless steps are taken to head off the methods of some of the associations. On one hand, there is a clamor for the abolition of expense funds, and on the other is a cry that the associations will be endangered by any such course. The sentiment that paid-up stock should be taxed is general, while on the question of assessing prepaid stock for taxation there is some difference of opinion. There is also a demand that the excessive premiums charged borrowers should be remedied. Mr. Stotsenberg, of New Albany, has a bill already before the House, prohibiting associations from using the dues of members for expenses. Around the hotel lobbies in the evenings stories are told of how men have lost money in associations by withdrawals, or how they have been oppressed.

A bill will be introduced in the House to-morrow regulating the interest and premium to be charged borrowers, also compelling associations to file reports with the Auditor of State showing the detailed expelling associations to file reports with the Auditor of State showing the detailed expenses. The greatest complaint is against the expense funds, as the associations are not now required to show what they pay to officers and agents. A great many of the associations charge 10 cents dues on each share of stock a month. One of the associations, taken at random from the list, has shares in the neighborhood of 40,000. Ten cents a month dues on each share would give the first named association $4,000 a month or $48,000 a year. Its statement for June, 1893, shows that only $2,500 has been transferred to the loan fund from the expense fund. This association does not differ from the others, with possibly a few exceptions. Expense funds amounting to $30,000 or $40,000 a year are held by many to be excessive, and should not be raised unless a large part of them revert to the loan fund. The fear is expressed that too much is paid out in salaries and to agents. The scope of the associations has broadened wonderfully since the beginning of the system in the State some years ago, and now many of the associations partake of the nature of a general banking business.

Paid-up stock is issued on a guarantee of 8 per cent. Interest, which makes a fine investment, as the stock is not assessed for ber of licenses taken out the past few days. It is estimated that there are about 12,000 vehicles in the city, and at the present rate about 9,000 of them will be without licenses next Wednesday. Contempt Charge Dismissed. Matthew Dean was before Judge Harvey, of the Superior Court, yesterday on a charge of contempt. Two years ago a divorce was granted his wife, Mamie Dean. vorce was granted his wife, Mamie Dean, Cases are recited where capitalists with good credit at banks have borrowed money at 5½ per cent. and immediately invested it in 8 per cent. paid up stock, which they FOR AN ADJUSTMENT OF A $5,000 on short notice. A man with credit and little cash could speculate very handily in this manner. On the other hand, it is shown that the association can go to bank and borrow money at almost as low a rate of interest and lend it in turn to borrowers FIRE LOSS AT $18,000.

of interest and lend it in turn to borrowers at 8 per cent., or at even a higher rate when the premium is considered. On prepaid stock only half of the face value of the stock is paid at once, the member participating in the earnings and withdrawing when the face value is equaled by his first deposit plus the earnings. There is a protest against such stock being assessed for taxation, although men who are investigating the system insist that such stock should be as-Edward A. Munson, State agent of the North British Mercantile Insurance Company, found himself in an extremely uncomfortable position in the Superior Court, sessed at least on the amount first deposited by a member.

The bill now before the house, as stated before, prohibits the use of the dues for the general expenses, providing that the expenses be paid out of the profits. In many cases the dues are deducted from the monthly installments, and a member is unyesterday afternoon, Some time ago Ovid B. Jameson, attorney for the creditors of Rachel Newgarden, brought suit against Munson to recover $250 which, it was averred, the insurance agent had in his posmany cases the dues are deducted from the monthly installments, and a member is unable to ascertain the exact earnings of his stock. If he pays a dollar a month on a share, 10 cents of this goes for the expense fund, and, thereby, one-tenth of his investment has no earning capacity. A case is reported where one association loaned $30,000 in a given time and the expenses for that period were $14,000.

A circular issued by Charles Kahlo, of the Indiana Mutual, has found its way into the hands of legislators. He opposed compelling shareholders to bid off money at a high premium. He holds that there should to a fixed rate of interest and premium. The average number of investors to that of session and which he declined to deliver up. The case came up yesterday afternoon be-fore special Judge Vinson Carter, in Room 1. Munson is advanced in years and his hair is white. He was on the stand the entire afternoon. The $250 in question, it was alleged, had been turned over to Munson by Jacob Weiner, the agent and manager of the Newgarden millinery store, some time in July, 1894. Previous to that time the Newgarden store had been damaged by fire fixed rate of interest and premium. The average number of investors to that of borrowers is about ten to one, and the high premium throws much of the burden of the association on those who borrow. He opposes admission fees. Some State associations have agents throughout the State who received the admission fee as their commission. Mr. Kahlo shows that his association has transferred from the expense fund to the loan fund $33,650 and $9.700 to the reserve fund. He does not think it best to abolish the expense fund, as so many others insist, but holds that a published statement should be made at intervals detailing these expenses, so that the shareholders and among the fire insurance companies carrying policies on the stock was the North British Mercantile Insurance Company, represented here by Edward Munson. During the examination of the agent yesterday afternoon it was openly charged that the $250 in dispute had been turned over to Munson by Weiner, who understood that it was to go to insurance adjuster. The adjustment was made by a man named Boyd, who came here from Cleveland, O., at the request of the companies involved in the loss. Although not brought out in evidence The ways and means committee, at its last meeting, was surrounded by a group of prominent Indianapolis men who are interested in these associations. They insisted that the committee act slowly in recommending changes in the present law. the attorney in the case intimated that Boyd was offered $250 to report an $18,000 loss, instead of $5,000, which was the final adjustment. It is asserted that Boyd declined to make other than an honest adjustment. The agent, Munson, admitted, in his testimony, that he had received the money, but declared that it was not now in his possession. When pressed by the attorney, he said that he had paid the amount to men whose names he could not remembies of the hotels. The Senators who went to Bloomington went from there to their homes and the members of the upper branch who went to call on Warden French will not return until some time to-day. Many of the Senators whose committee allgnment did not include them in the Bloomington or Michigan City junkets had not been to their homes since the session began and the adjournment until Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock offered to many a much needed opportunity to go home and attend to neglected business affairs. ber. One of them, he said, came to Indianapolis from Dayton, O. He admitted having paid the money over without an order from Boyd or any one else. Attorney Jameson thought it strange that the witness could not remember to whom he had paid the money and remarked that fact to the court. He further charged the witness with being guilty of perjury and demanded that he be

His action is disgraceful, and he should be sent to jail."

"I am convinced that there is something here that has not come out," Judge Carter said. "While I do not say that Mr. Munson has been guilty of perjury, I am inclined to believe that he has not told all he knows. I will contine the case until next Saturday, when Mr. Munson must either the Gallup Estate. Attorney John W. Kern, representing County Treasurer Holt, filed a petition in the matter of the Gallup estate late yesterday evening in the Circuit Court. The petition sets up the allegation that there is now due the county the sum of $61,233.59 from the estate of the late William P. Gallup. The court's attention is called to the fact that the executor has as a part the fact that the executor has as a part of the assets of the decedent's estate a large sum of money, to-wit: $50,000, and a large number of negotiable bonds and other securities, readily convertible into money, to the amount of $350,000, a sum more than sufficient to pay the delinquent taxes due from the estate. It is averred that since the making of such assessment the county treasurer has demanded and has been refused payment by the executor. The court is asked to issue an order commanding the executor to show cause within five days why such taxes should not be paid, and at why such taxes should not be paid, and at a final hearing require payment of the full

Commodore McCoy, aged nineteen years, and Mattie White, aged forty-three, were fined $10 each by Judge Stubbs. They were arrested together in George Sindlinger's saloon, on Kentucky avenue, near Maryland street. The boy testified that the women of the neighborhood, who have been forbidden to sell liquors in their houses, go to the saloon and have drinks served there. A further examination will be made of Boeckling Files a Deed. The Berkshire Investment Company, by its president, George A. Boeckling, and Elizabeth Boeckling, secretary, yesterday deposited a deed of transfer at the office of the county recorder, showing the sale of $34,600 worth of property located on Fayette street, between Pratt and First streets, to Norman S. The judgment is in favor of Mrs. Madeline Boyle, who sued Boeckling for house Boyle, who sued Boeckling for breach of promise. WILLIAM DAVIS WILES

DIED YESTERDAY MORNING AFTER A LINGERING ILLNESS.

Well Known as a Prosperous and Irreproachable Business Man-Ex-Judge Holman Dead.

After several months of illness William Davis Wiles, who was familiarly known to his friends as Captain Wiles, died at an early hour yesterday morning, at his late home, corner of Third and Illinois streets. He has been afflicted with dropsy and kindred trouble for several years, necessitating his retirement from the wholesale grocery firm of Coffin & Wiles in 1891. For a week past he has been in a state of semi-unconsciousness, and the end was expected at any moment. It has been months since he was able to lie down, and a chair has been his couch. His wife has also been seriously ill for a number of months. A few hours before his demise she was carried into his room, and he turned and recognized her, then lapsed into unconsciousness, from which he did not rally. The funeral will occur to-morrow afternoon from the family residence, Rev. J. A. Milburn conducting the service. The interment will follow at Crown Hill. Friends may view the body from 3 to 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. Wiles was born in Henry county, Indiana, Feb. 5, 1828. He has only lived in that county and this. His father, like all the pioneers, was poor and had a struggle to keep his family supplied with the necessaries of life, and William, being one of the elder of a large family had to assist in that struggle. He helped clear the farm and worked in the summer and fall, getting the usual three months at the district school in the winter. He was determined to get room, and he turned and recognized her, usual three months at the district school in the winter. He was determined to get an education, and by his own exertions he was able to enter Friends Boarding School (now Earlham College) in 1847. From 1847 to 1850 he attended the academy and taught at Rich Square, a Friend's school in Henry county. In 1852 he was deputy treasurer of Henry county and in 1855 he and his brother, Daniel H., began a mercantile business at Lewisville. This was continued successfully until they sold out to come to this city in 1864. In 1865 he engaged in the wholesale grocery trade in this city with David W. Coffin ut fer the firm name of Coffin & Wiles, and was continuously engaged in that pursuit until 1891 when the firm retired from business on account of Mr. Wiles's from business on account of Mr. Wiles's ill health. No man ever did business on Meridian street who had the confidence and esteem of his customers and complitions to a higher degree than did Captain Wiles.

In 1861 he heeded his county's call and raised a company of the Thirty-sixth Indiana regiment and went to the front with it. After the battle of Shiloh he resigned on account of ill health. When he came home he was such a physical wreck that none of his family or friends expected he would recover. He has always taken an active interest in politics as a Republican, he served as a member of the City Council and Board of Alderman and was defeated by James L. Mitchell as the Republican candidate for Mayor. His defeat for the office of Mayor was due to the opposition of saloons and also of organized labor, which opposed him because his son accepted work from the Western Union during a strike, he being a telegrapher. Meridian street who had the confidence and telegrapher.

He was an Odd Fellow for forty years and was also a member of the Knights of Pythias, Royal Arcanum and other beneficial organizations. He had a birth right in the Society of Friends, but was disowned for entering the army. Shortly before his death he was baptised at his home by Rev. Mr. Milburn and received into the membership of the Second Presbyterian Church, of which his wife has long been a member. Besides his wife three daughters survive him. Mrs. Smith, of this city; Mrs. Frank Edder, of Richmond, and Mrs. Albemarie Tousey, of Tacoma. His temporal af-Tousey, of Tacoma. His temporal af-fairs were all arranged and he leaves his family in comfortable circumstances.

JOHN A. HOLMAN. Former Judge of Superior Court Dies in New York.

Holman, once bn the Superior bench of this county, died last Tuesday in New York city. News of his death was not received until yesterday and no particulars are known. Some of his friends here conjecture that his demise occurred in an insanse asylum, as It is known that he was deranged for some time before his death. For the last five years Mr. Holman has resided in New York. He was well known in Indianapolis, where, until a few years ago, he had lived since his birth in 1849. He was educated at Butler University, then known as the Northwestern Christian University, and at the age of eighteen settled down to the practice of law. His mother was the youngest daughter of Governor James Brown Ray. At the age of nineteen years Mr. Holman was admitted to practice at the Marion county bar on the recommendation of Samuel E. Perkins and David McDonald, with whom he read law.

He enjoyed the personal friendship of Governor Hendricks and, at the age of twenty-six years, he was appointed a judge of the Superior Court. He was afterward elected to the Superior bench, where he remained until 1882. Although he received a salary of $3,000 a year, he was not of an economical disposition and lived in excess of his means. From 1884 to 1886 Mr. Holman was employed by the defendants in the case of Herman Sturm vs. Ferdinand A. sem minufel equipped with the same properties of insurance suits on arms consigned to the county bar on the recommendation of surance suits on arms consigned to the Mexican government and lost at sea. For Mexican government and lost at sea. For many years before Mr. Holman left Indianapolis it was a source of regret among his friends and associates that he seemed unable to curb his appetite for drink. He was very popular, always congenial and his convivial nature served to augment the temptations to indulge his appetite. During his prosperous days he was known as one of the best dressed men in Indianapolis and the best dressed men in Indianapolis, and, with his genteel appearance, he always car-ried a dignified and courteous deportment.

DEATH RELIEVED HIM. Howard Barnes, a Former Indian-

apolitan, Dies at Battle Creek, Mich. Private telegrams received by personal friends in this city convey the intelligence of the death, yesterday, at Battle Creek, Mich., of Howard Barnes, a former citizen of Indianapolis. Barnes was one of the best known sporting men in the United States, and had conducted turf exchanges and gambling houses in a dozen different cities ality was such that wherever he went he made warm and enduring friendships among a class of people who would have refused recognition to others of the same calling, and his associates were of the better class. In Indianapolis he was a conspicuous figure for several years, until 1884, when he removed to Detroit, near which city he had since made his home. In business affairs he was the soul of honor, and no promise, once made, was ever to be violated. His word was as good as his bond, and among those who knew him was never questioned. He made fortunes and spent them with the freedom of a Prince, and his generality freedom of a Prince, and his generosity was as wide as his purse. If it came to his knowledge that money had been lost at any game under his control by people who were pinched and suffered in consequence, it was his custom to send for the loser and restore the amount, first administering sin-cere and well-meant advice to avoid all cere and well-meant advice to avoid all games of chance in future, and the giving of orders to his employes never to permit the individual to chance another dollar in his house. Broke or in affluence, he was the same "good fellow," possessing some of the fralities of mankind, but more of the virtues than many of those who criticised him because of his vocation. With him there was no question of morals involved in gambling—he risked his money against that of other people, and, win or lose, the transaction was as legitimate, in his mind, as any other. It has been frequently remarked of him that he was a John Oakhurst in real life, and the comparison was fit. Four years ago, associated with E. H. and W. H. Gillman, of Detroit, Mr. Barnes invested a large sum of money in a summer hotel and pleasure resort on an island near Detroit, resolving to devote his time to its management, but about this time his health broke down, and, to his friends, it became evident that he was a victim of paresis. Since that time he had grown steadily worse until about ten days ago, when his mental condition made necessary his removal to a sanitarium, where he died yesterday. He will be remembered with kindness by those who knew him here and his unfortunate end will occasion their sincere regret. He leaves a wife, whom he married

Society of Hygiene.

At a recent meeting of the Society of Hygiene the committee appointed to see the library officials read a paper from Miss Browning, the librarian, which stated that by request of the society the Sanitarian had been placed upon the subscription list, and that the library already contained "The Annals of Hygiene," the other periodical recommended by the committee. The committee that had in charge the address before the State Teachers' Association reported that Mrs. Harrell had prepared a paper, but was too illl to be present at the convention. The paper was read by the president of the Society of Hygiene, who supplemented it Society of Hygiene, who supplemented it with a plea from herself that a chair of hygiene be established in the State Univershygiene be established in the State University, and that it be taught more extensively in the public schools. A report from the secretary and treasurer showed a careful revision of the membership list. A suggestion of the president lead to the decision that the secretary should hereafter give notice of the regular monthly meetings to members and friends. The discussion of the meeting was based upon a work of evolution by Gustav Schlikeysen, German scientist, who was based upon a work of evolution by Gustav Schlikeysen, German scientist, who reaches his conclusions from a strictly dietitic standpoint. The next meeting will be held Feb. 27. Company A.'s New Quarters.

The two-story brick building at No. 121 East Pearl street has been leased by Company A, Second Infantry, for an armory and club quarters. The interior will include a drill hall, officers' quarters and a room where newly recruited men may be drilled. Capt. H. C. Castor says that twenty recruits are now desired. Company A is one of the oldest organizations now in the service of the State. It was organized July 29, 1882, as a zonave July 29, 1882, as a zouave company, and was known as Richardson's Zouaves. In 1886 the company adopted the infantry tac-
